

StrategEast

eastern mind western values

StrategEast center for a new economy has the mission to reinforce the values of the rule of law and private property protection in Eurasian and Baltic countries through the transition from natural-resource-based to knowledge-driven economies.

Our work is focused on the 14 countries that proclaimed or restored their independence after the collapse of the USSR: Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Estonia, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Latvia, Lithuania, Moldova, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Ukraine, and Uzbekistan.

StrategEast is a registered 501(c)3 organization based in the United States, with regional offices in Ukraine and Georgia.

OUR TEAM

Anatoly MOTKIN
President

Anatoly Motkin is a successful technology investor with years of experience in political consulting and media entrepreneurship in the Eurasian region.

He began his career as a political consultant both in Israel and Eurasia. He later moved from politics to media, helping to start one of the leading Russian-language media companies in Israel. Mr. Motkin has served as an advisor and investor to both the public and private sectors, successfully backing several Israeli IT projects developed in the High Technologies Park in Belarus.

As his career has shifted over time, Mr. Motkin has consistently shown his dedication to improving business practices and government transparency in the Eurasian region. Mr. Motkin's extensive background has led him to deepen his focus on the reinforcement of the values of rule of law and private property protection in the former Soviet region through the creation of StrategEast.

PROGRAMS

GLOBAL MINDS INITIATIVE

The goal of the Global Minds Initiative is to help Eurasian countries develop thriving IT sectors as a part of their economic transition to becoming better integrated into the free world's economy. Through the initiative, we aim to create a large and influential group of high-quality tech entrepreneurs, who share the core liberal values such as rule of law, protection of intellectual and private property, and social responsibility. These values will become part of the DNA of the new tech industry in Eurasian region. The tech sector will help the Eurasian region move from consumption to creation – a vital and necessary transition in the new digital economy. A new generation of people with a fresh mindset will create law-based institutions and more dynamic, efficient and competitive markets in the region.

STRATEG EAST IT HUB IN EURASIAN COUNTRIES

StrategEast has developed a new education IT HUB format facilitating the creation of new IT industry development centers in Eurasian countries.

- Our students are being trained by the high level IT practitioners working at global IT companies;
- The first StrategEast IT HUB was created in Georgia in cooperation with one of the leading global engineering companies EPAM Systems and Georgia's Innovation and Technology Agency;
- Each IT HUB student is being trained remotely by a personal coach;
- The IT HUB online training format allowed the educational center to continue working, even amid the lockdown periods;
- The program facilitates employment for the graduates;
- StrategEast IT HUB immediately creates new jobs and attracts foreign direct investments in each region it starts being active in.

The StrategEast State and IT Eurasian Forum is an annual event that serves as a unique platform for dialogue between governments and leaders of the IT industry.

The inaugural StrategEast State and IT Eurasian Forum took place in 2019 in Kyiv, Ukraine. In 2020, the second event was held in Tbilisi, Georgia in a hybrid online-offline format.

The Forum brings together representatives of global and local tech companies, governments, international financial institutions, and development agencies. It provides an opportunity to discuss what needs to be done to enhance the innovative economy across the region and assists Eurasian countries with their integration into the global economic and security system.

YOUNG LEADERSHIP PROGRAM

The Young Leadership Program is designed to provide young deputy ministers of Eurasian and Baltic states with a thorough understanding of how internal processes in the U.S. government system work and the role of governmental authorities in economic processes. The program takes place over a week-long visit to the United States, including training events led by high-level U.S. officials and analytical community representatives who provide deeper insights into the interaction between state and businesses.

The project is led by StrategEast in cooperation with Open World Leadership Center and local USAID missions.

ONLINE DISCUSSIONS WITH GLOBAL THOUGHT LEADERS

To continue the conversation on how technology can lead to an overall transformation in Eurasia, StrategEast has launched a series of online panels called StrategEast Live. During these panels, our esteemed guests put forward ideas that facilitate the further development of a knowledge-driven economy in the region

WESTERNIZATION INDEX & REPORT

The annual product of the StrategEast experts contains an evaluation of the Eurasian and Baltic countries' levels of westernization. The Index is based on a series of elements and benchmarks which assist us in assessing the adoption and implementation of the western model by looking at five key areas: political westernization; economic westernization; legal westernization; language and cultural westernization; and westernization of lifestyle.

StrategEast created the Westernization Index & Westernization Report with two goals in mind. First, we seek to help the nations of Eurasia and the Baltic better address the shared challenges they face in the process of rebuilding their states and institutions after the collapse of the Soviet Union. Second, we seek to draw attention to an important, yet geopolitically fragile, region in a way that helps the international community better support its development.
